On 28 April 1997 the members of a group established during the 5th International Congress on dry stone walling in October 1996, met in Val, France, to create the:

"International scientific society for the interdisciplinary study of dry stone"

On 2 August 1997, the Association was registered in the Official Journal of the French State with its aim to maintain the link between researchers, craftsmen, associations and individuals.

The society brings together scientists, amateurs and institutions working for the study, protection and conservation of dry stone buildings. The first international Congress on the subject was held in Bari (Italy) in 1988. These informal meetings led to the official creation of the SPS in 1998. The SPS took over the role of organising the international congress every two years and to discuss developments in the world of dry stone walling. It looks at the different issues, offers opinions on the methods used and the objectives pursued by the various partners. Through its action, it maintains the link among the various partners and ensures continuity.

The first Congress was held in Bari (I) in and then every two years since then. Hosts have included: Barcelona (SP), Crete (GR), Majorca (E), Imperia (I), Le Val / Carcès (F), Peñíscola (E), Viege (Sw), Mytilene (GR), Montalbán (SP), Locorotondo (I).

The next Congress is in Ambleside, Cumbria (UK) from 4 to 6 September 2010. All organisers publish the proceedings of the meetings.
